

ROJESTVENSKY HELD AT VIGO BY RUSSIA; FRANCE TO ARBITRATE

British and Russian Diplomats Reach an Agreement for an Investigation Before the Ghost-Seeing Fleet Gets too Far Away.

MOBILIZATION OF ENGLISH NAVY GOING FORWARD

St. Petersburg Newspapers Accept the Vice-Admiral's Story of a Japanese Torpedo Boat Attack on His Fleet Under Cover of the Hull Fisherman as an Absolutely True Tale.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 28, 2:45 p. m.—Orders have been telegraphed to Vice-Admiral Rojestvensky to detain at Vigo all the warships which took part in the North Sea incident.

LONDON, Oct. 28, 1:34 p. m.—Orders have been issued and acknowledged by Vice-Admiral Rojestvensky that the Russian squadron remain at Vigo until the conclusion of the present Russo-British negotiations. This eliminates what was regarded here as one of the most dangerous features of the situation, namely, the possibility of a premature clash between the British and Russian squadrons.

The cabinet today considered the Russian proposition to submit the question of individual responsibility to a commission. The details or the constitution of this commission have not been quite determined on.

Russia has expressed her willingness to detach the commander of the second Pacific squadron and such other individual officers as may be found to have been directly concerned in the firing, for examination by the commission.

By agreeing to abide by the verdict of this commission Russia would undertake to carry out sentences which it may impose, and thereby it is believed the separate guarantee of punishment which is so distasteful to Russia may be obviated.

The cabinet meeting broke up shortly before 2 o'clock, the ministers laughing and chatting and being apparently in the happiest frame of mind, thus confirming the belief that the crisis is in a fair way to be dissipated.

PARIS, Oct. 28.—Great Britain has offered to submit the British-Russian complications to an international commission, and there is every reason to believe that Russia will accept this arrangement.

SIMULTANEOUS INQUIRIES TO BE HELD AT HULL AND AT VIGO, SPAIN

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 28, 2:10 p. m.—Despite the Chauvinistic tone of the Russian press this morning and the wild talk which is being indulged in regarding the possibility of war, the Associated Press is in a position to state positively that the situation has entered on a distinctly better phase, and that the basis of an agreement between the two governments now appears probable.

There is still danger, however, that some untoward incident, in view of the excited state of public opinion in both countries, may precipitate another crisis. Both the Russian and British governments are animated by a desire promptly to reach a common ground on which both can stand in order to obtain the fullest light upon the circumstances of the incident, which are left more mysterious than ever by the startling statements made in Admiral Rojestvensky's report.

A palatable solution, it is recognized by both sides, would be the submission of the affair to an international tribunal and that steps already have been taken in this direction beyond doubt. The mere announcement of the submission of the dispute to such a court would have the immediate effect of reducing the dangerous tension in both countries. The proceeding would be dignified, whatever the result, and each country would be bound by the weight of the world's public opinion to accept the findings and act accordingly.

If it is demonstrated that Rojestvensky acted without justification, Russia will properly punish him. If it is established that torpedo boats attacked the squadron under the cover of the British fishing fleet or from the shelter of the British ports or waters, then Great Britain will be compelled to offer the most humble apologies and make the fullest reparation.

Just how the details of the commission are to be worked out will be determined as soon as the general basis is reached. It is almost certain that two simultaneous inquiries will be held by the British at Hull and the Russians at Vigo, each with representatives of the other present.

The result of both inquiries will be submitted to an international commission. Orders have already been telegraphed to Rojestvensky to detain at Vigo all the ships which took part in the North Sea incident.

Rojestvensky's full report is expected to reach St. Petersburg by mail Sunday or Monday.

Almost all the papers discuss the affair in a spirit of bitterness against Great Britain, which is not shared in foreign circles, where the greatest desire to reach an amicable adjustment is manifested.

A paragraph printed in America and dated Sept. 30, reporting the appearance of some Japanese at Aberdeen, who, the report said, boarded in the offing a mysterious looking craft which resembled a torpedo boat and which was supposed to be waiting for the Russian squadron, is reproduced here with great prominence. Prince Meitshensky, editor of the Grashdanin, however demands an investigation which will fix definitely the responsibility and express the hope, for the honor of Russia, that Rojestvensky is not at fault, but if he is, he deserves he must be punished.

Incident Likely To Be Settled.

AIRSHIP WEATHER PREDICTED

Clear Skies, Pleasant Temperature and Light Winds Are Forecast For St. Louis.

Airship weather is in sight for St. Louis and vicinity for the next day or two. The variety is peculiar to St. Louis and is characterized by clear skies, pleasant temperatures and light winds—just the kind the aeronauts say they most prefer.

The forecast: "Fair tonight, Saturday and Sunday; moderate temperature; light, variable winds."

Snow was reported this morning from New England, and it was raining in northern Florida. Elsewhere throughout the country the weather was fair.

There was frost Thursday night as far south as northern Texas, Arkansas, northern Louisiana, Mississippi, Kentucky and Tennessee.

The temperature went to freezing, or below in the Ohio valley.

BIG POST-DISPATCH THEATRICAL BENEFIT WAS FINE SUCCESS

Splendid Audience Thronged Music Hall to See the Performers From Many Theaters and the Receipts Were $2300.

BLANCHE BATES' SKETCH ONE OF THE GOOD THINGS

Almost Every St. Louis Theater and Some of the Shows on the Pike Were Represented, and the Bill Was Remarkably Varied.

The Post-Dispatch theatrical benefit at Music Hall was the big event of yesterday in St. Louis.

It netted $2300 for the families of the detectives slain in the battle with train robbers a week ago today.

It attracted one of the biggest and finest audiences ever assembled in the city.

It brought the theatrical managers and performers of St. Louis together in such a big professional family as St. Louis has never known.

Twenty-three hundred persons saw the show. Society people, members of the World's Fair Board of Lady Managers and fashionable who are here to see the Fair were in the boxes. Hundreds of the friends of Detectives Dwyer, Shea and McClusky were seated in the body of the house.

The Post-Dispatch originated the benefit last Thursday afternoon, when it secured the hall and the co-operation of the theatrical managers and performers. The project was first mentioned in the Post-Dispatch issue of last Sunday morning.

Post-Dispatch tickets were placed upon sale Tuesday, and the sale of them amounted to nearly $2300 at various places in the city and at the box office at Music Hall, where only Post-Dispatch tickets were sold.

Thirty-nine tickets issued by another afternoon newspaper were presented at the door and were honored.

The doors were opened at 1 o'clock. Hundreds of early comers were waiting in the building as early as 12:30. The day was delightful. There was a heavy attendance at the World's Fair in expectation of seeing the airships; but the big theatrical benefit was a magnet of singular potency, and it drew into the Music Hall an audience which was quite as remarkable for its many fruits from the smart life of the city as the show itself was remarkable for some of the talent it offered.

It required the charitable courtesy and industry of many persons to give that show. It was asking a great deal of an actress of the professional distinction of Miss Blanche Bates to expect that she would forego her day's rest and appear out of her own theater in a big vaudeville bill with a little of everything in it—even Indians. But the good cause in which it was given swept every objection away for Miss Bates, and she went to great lengths to make the benefit a success, doing it all in that joyous, business-like way characteristic of this delightful and capable actress.

It was asking a good deal of M. Gaudin, the noted French tenor, to expect that he would depart from his work at Paris on the Pike and sing at this benefit; but M. Gaudin did it with pleasure. Just as Manager Frank Tate of the Columbia Theater laid aside his business for that day and devoted himself to the benefit, making a success of the benefit, and as every performer and manager identified with it gave time and effort to help in a good cause.

The exceptional lengths to which some of the participants went are noteworthy. For instance, Manager Janopolsky had his tire "Louisiana" company present and they put on the entire first act of this big and beautiful show. Additionally, the music was furnished by two complete orchestras, both volunteering.

Also, Miss Bates and Messrs. Ormonde and Benrimo rehearsed for three days the little

FATHER-IN-LAW IS NEMESIS OF CAPTURED MAN

Chase Extending to Pacific Coast and Lasting Two Years Results in Arrest of Husband Who Fleed After Young Bride's Death.

ELOPEMENT FOLLOWED BY HER UNEXPLAINED DEATH

Letter Came From California Telling of Her Fatal Illness in Georgia, and Investigation Showed She Died in Tennessee Hospital.

After roaming over the United States two years in an effort to evade the law, haunted by fears of an avenging father-in-law whose time and hard-earned savings were devoted to the search for him, Walter Henning, wanted at Chattanooga, Tenn., in connection with the death of his bride of a month, is occupying a cell in the Four Courts holdover.

Henning was arrested at the Cherokee Hotel, 322 Market street, where he registered as William Harbin.

Friday Detective H. C. Havercamp of Nashville arrived in St. Louis and positively identified the prisoner as Walter Henning.

It appears that Henning recently wrote a letter to a friend in Nashville, and that this gave the police the clue which led to his arrest.

The tragedy for which Henning will be called upon to answer by the Tennessee authorities was the culmination of a brief but eventful courtship.

Henning's home is at Atlanta, Ga., only a short distance from Saddy, Tenn., where three years ago he met Mary Hallett, the prepossessing daughter of a well-to-do miner.

Mr. Hallett objected to Henning calling upon his daughter, and finally ordered him from the house.

But notwithstanding the parental injunction, Henning and the girl sweetheart managed to meet at the home of a mutual friend. One day Henning proposed and was accepted.

News of Death From California.

Mr. Hallett was notified a few days later of their elopement by a message from Henning, who wrote:

"We have decided to marry, and ask your forgiveness."

Mr. Hallett did forgive them, but he never saw his daughter alive.

A month after the elopement Mr. Hallett was startled by the receipt of a letter from his son-in-law, which stated that his wife had died a few days before.

The letter came from Los Angeles, Cal. "I am sending you by express," wrote Henning, "a trunk which belonged to May. She was taken suddenly ill at Atlanta."

Mr. Hallett became suspicious. He wrote to Henning for particulars of his daughter's death. No answer came. Then he went up to Chattanooga to notify the authorities.

Investigation revealed that a woman known as Mary Hallett had died in a private sanitarium at Chattanooga, as the result of an operation performed at the request of Walter Henning. The physician who performed the operation left Chattanooga immediately after the young woman died, and his body was buried in the city cemetery there.

Before a warrant could be secured Henning had fled.

Mr. Hallett vowed to find Henning if it took all his fortune, several thousand dollars. The search extended to every large city and the police finally gave up hope, but the grieving father of Mary Hallett, Henning, did not.

When Henning sent a letter recently to a friend at Chattanooga, Mr. Hallett was informed of the fact, and the police were at once notified.

Henning, 32 years old, tall and fine looking. He refuses to discuss the charge against him.

He admits that his name is Walter Henning, and that he lived at one time in Atlanta.

SAYS LOVE DIED IN 5 YEARS

Divorce Petitioner Makes Husband's Alleged Coldness Ground in Suit for Separation.

Alleging that she was slighted by her husband, who, she says, moved his effects to a separate part of the house and scarcely spoke to herself and children, Mrs. Belle M. Be Moss, who runs a fashionable boarding house at 211 Washington avenue, Friday entered suit for divorce in the circuit court from Thos. W. Be Moss, a clerk in the city water rates office. She says she has lived apart from her husband for five years.

She alleges they were married Dec. 18, 1892. In 1898, she alleges, she first began to observe a coldness in his demeanor towards her and their two children. Then, she says, he moved his effects in one part of the house and came and went as he pleased, seldom more than frowning on her. They lived apart in this manner for one year, when she went to the home of her father.

Mr. Be Moss is now said to live at 322 North Spring avenue. Mrs. Be Moss asks for the custody of the two children, Morton, aged 8, and David, aged 5 years.

DODGE CITY, Kan., Oct. 28.—An earthquake was felt here last night. There were three very distinct shocks which were sufficient to arouse many from their sleep.

Woman Fell From Step of Government Building and Later Died Shrieking in Delirium.

The body of Mrs. Sarah Yarrington, 24 years old, who died at the City Hospital Thursday night of an injury sustained at the World's Fair Oct. 4, is at the morgue. Arrangements for the funeral have not been made.

Mrs. Yarrington died shrieking in delirium which lasted for seven days. Physicians were unable to find the cause of the injury. Mrs. Yarrington fell down several steps of the government building at the Exposition, but did not seem to be badly hurt.

Montana Aeronaut, Whose Meteor Made Brief and Fiftful Flight at Twilight Test, Hopes to Soar Over Exposition Palaces.

CROWDS FILL CONCOURSE; BALDWIN SHIP NOT READY

Failure of First Exhibition to Inspire Expectant Crowd Is Attributed to Lack of Gas and Unfavorable Atmospheric Conditions.

Thomas C. Benbow, the Montana aeronaut, will set sail in his airship, "Meteor," from the aeronautic concourse for a cruise over the World's Fair grounds late this afternoon if wind and weather conditions are favorable.

At noon Harry Wells, assistant to Benbow, speaking for Benbow, made the official statement that the Meteor would positively set sail some time during the afternoon.

Weather conditions at that time were not that could be desired, and there was no reason to anticipate that there would be such a change as would necessitate abandoning or deferring the flight.

Under the direction of Wells, the gas bag was filled Friday morning with fresh gas, imparting the buoyancy that was lacking Thursday evening.

Benbow's purpose is to confine the flight of his ship to the World's Fair area. He expects to be able to circle around and return to the starting point in the concourse.

The aeronautic concourse has become the center of interest for World's Fair crowds. The crowd around the aerodrome gathered around the one open door and gazed in awe at the Benbow ship which made a brief and fiftful flight yesterday, and the captive balloon, the only two aerial vehicles which were inflated.

It was taken for granted that the Jefferson Guard on duty was an aerial expert, and he was called upon to answer a hundred questions a minute.

Inflation of the Baldwin ship, which made a flight over the city Tuesday, had not been begun, and there was no indication that it would sail again today, nor any expectation that it would.

During the early afternoon there was a light breeze from the southwest. If this direction is maintained and the Benbow ship should ascend and not be able to return to the starting point, it would be carried in a northwesterly course across the city.

LACK OF GAS IN YESTERDAY'S ATTEMPT

"Meteor," the airship of Thomas C. Benbow, was led out of its stable into the padlock of the aeronautic concourse at the World's Fair at 5 o'clock Thursday evening amid the plaudits of several hundred persons who had come to see something fly.

For hours they had hung around the aerodrome and would not be satisfied. Benbow refused to come out unless he received something more substantial than applause. His steed of the heavens was equipped to be off, and, metaphorically speaking, stood in its stall in the aerodrome champing at its sand bags.

Finally some one sent for the authorities. President Francis, Secretary Stevens, Judge Ferriss, Percy Hudson and several Exposition directors came to the aerodrome to see what might be done.

In the aerodrome were two balloons and an airship filled with hydrogen gas, of which the air is redolent.

A young man among the spectators lighted a match. A Jefferson Guard pounced upon him in a second.

"Do you want to blow up the works?" he shouted, and hustled the youth out the big door.

Then President Francis came in. He stood close to Benbow's ship, inspecting it, puffing voluminous clouds of smoke from a cigar.

The president looked calmly on, listening.

MAKE DUPLICATES OF L. P. E. MEDALS

There Is No Law Against Winners Reproducing Them if They Wish.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—The fears of exhibitors at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition that they would be deprived from duplicating the medals they happened to win at the Fair, for advertising purposes, have proved unfounded.

Secretary Shaw today wrote a letter to Maj. Panburn, director of the U. S. G. exhibit, who raised the question, to the effect that there is nothing in the provisions of the sundry civil law for 1866 authorizing the coining of exhibition medals to prevent their duplicates by photograph or drawing.

GREAT BENEFIT A FINE SUCCESS

comediennes which they presented with such delightful skill.

No such complex performance had ever been given in St. Louis, and opinions were freely expressed that confusion would be sure to result from a congregation of performers behind the scenes. But the show went with a fine precision and without any greater interruptions than were necessary for a change of stage setting. There was not a five-minute wait from start to finish.

Mr. Tate, chairman of the program committee consisting of himself and Messrs. Patrick Short of the Olympic and M. E. Russell of the Imperial, opened the show with a brief address, in which he stated the cause in which the benefit was given—to secure against want those left in meager circumstances by the loss of husbands and brothers who gave their lives last Friday afternoon in the performance of an heroic duty. He apologized in advance for any rough corners the performance might present, explaining that the program had been hurriedly prepared and that all the people contributing to it come from one of the wisest of worlds—the world of amusement.

The curtain went up at 2:15 o'clock, revealing the beautiful wilderness scene of the Music Hall "Louisiana." The entire first act of the big stage version of the Louisiana Purchase was given. It covered 20 minutes, and it was rich in fine entertainment and beautiful scenes. All the principals of the show appeared, including W. G. Stewart, the fine-looking Davy Crockett of the noted Hayes show, and Miss Frances Merton, whose Dixie is a combination of personal beauty and stage skill not often found.

The applause for "Louisiana" had scarcely subsided when Mr. Tate announced Harry Thompson, "Mayor of the Bowery," who had come up from the Columbia Theater. The mayor was no stranger to the audience, but there were people in the boxes who could not place him. This did not disconcert the mayor for a moment, for he had not been on the stage two minutes before he had the big audience aroused "what was at times shrieking laughter."

M. Gauthier, French tenor, was next announced. The stalwart tenor's services were by courtesy of himself and Messrs. Stone and Stone, proprietors of Paris on Pike. M. Gauthier won the heart of St. Louis when he sang with the French Opera at Music Hall last winter, and he was welcomed with rousing applause. He sang "La Marseillaise" from "Il Trovatore," and his great, golden voice pierced to the furthest corners of the great hall, stirring the audience to an expression of delight which would not be denied an encore, though it had been agreed that encores would not be permitted. M. Gauthier sang again, and even then the audience found it hard to give him up.

Mr. Tate's announcement of Miss Blanche Bates and company in sketch was caught up by the house in a fine outburst of applause. Miss Bates had driven to Music Hall. She was accompanied by Mr. Henry Benrimo, who plays Zerkow, the war minister in "The Darling of the Gods," and by Mr. Eugene Ormrod, who plays Kara, a fine drama of old Japan. Her sketch is a comediennes, "My Aunt's Advice," written by Miss Bates herself and Mr. George Arline.

The curtain went up on a drawing room scene, and the audience was quick to catch sight of Miss Bates at the piano. It was the first time St. Louis had been given an opportunity to see the noted actress as herself and out of the Japanese make-up as Yo-San. Miss Bates wore an exquisite gown; and her appearance was so striking that St. Louis could realize what a beautiful woman is Miss Blanche Bates when she appears on the stage as herself.

The sketch covered 25 minutes. It told a story of how Mrs. Middleton (Miss Bates) followed her aunt's advice in an effort to get rid of a friend who was visiting the Middletons at their country home. Middleton hunted all day with his friend Richards, and at night he was so tired that his wife's music and painting, and even her company, did not interest him much. The Middletons had been married but three months, and the young wife thought it would add to the sum of happiness in her house to get rid of Richards. She had her aunt's advice in the matter, and she followed it. The audience was at first curious to see what the sketch would reveal. When it revealed Miss Bates as a delightfully ingenious comedienne the house was delighted, and numbers of times the sketch was interrupted by applause.

Mr. Ormrod was Dick Richards, and Mr. Benrimo was Middleton. The sketch was clever, and it was so splendidly done that the audience applauded thunderously at the end, calling Miss Bates and her assistants before the curtain no less than a half-dozen times.

Congratulations
For Miss Bates.
Miss Bates' appearance was by courtesy of her manager, Mr. David Belasco, and her resident manager, Mr. Maurice Kirby. She was shown with congratulations at the close of her sketch, and Matthew Kiley, chief of police, and William E. Desmond, chief of detectives, went to her and personally thanked her in the names of the families of the dead detectives and the police service of St. Louis.

Mr. R. C. Hertz was introduced. Mr. Hertz is a member of Miss Maxine Elliott's company, now playing "Her Own Way" at the Century Theater. Miss Elliott was expected to appear, but was unable to do so. Mr. Hertz is the excellent actor seen at the Century in the part of Stephen, Georgiana's brother. He gave two short humorous readings, and he did them up so nice and brown and with such a fine professional air that the audience explained in a somewhat demonstrative manner that it liked him immensely. Mr. Hertz was followed by Miss Mollie King, a 7-year-old miss who is seen in the first scene of Miss Elliott's play. Miss Mollie is one of the sweetest and ablest of child players, and when she came out in boy's attire and sang the audience could have hugged her.

Mr. James J. Ryan, the Messiah of the pink and white Colonial hat.

Mrs. Wm. Coleman of Indiana and Mrs. Frederick Hanger of Arkansas, two popular members of the board of lady managers, occupied one of the stage boxes. Both led the applause when Davy Crockett sang "Old Kentucky Home," as both are native Kentuckians.

Mrs. J. C. Van Blarcom entertained Mrs. Herbert Claiborne of Virginia, the national president of the Colonial Dames; Miss Hodge, Mrs. Ben Gray, Mrs. Ben Gray, Jr., and Mrs. Cabell Gray were also in her box.

Mrs. Max Kotany had her mother, Mrs. Wear, her sister, Mrs. Walker, and Mrs. Perry Francis and Mr. Kotany with her.

Mrs. Wear wore black voile and point lace. Mrs. Walker an all black toilet and Mrs. Francis wore pale blue cloth with hat to correspond. Mrs. Kotany was in navy blue cloth with hat of white felt and crimson roses.

Mrs. A. H. Handlan was accompanied by her three pretty daughters and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Hamilton Handlan, and Eugene Handlan. Mrs. Handlan wore black lace and diamonds and black hat; Miss Kathryn Handlan white lace with white feather cape; Miss Marie, white voile and lace and Miss Vella white crepe with big black hat. Mrs. H. Handlan was in pale gray, with chinchilla hat.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Stifel had several out-of-town guests with them—Mrs. Wm. Linke of St. Paul, Mrs. George Stifel and Miss Stifel of Wheeling, West Va., and Mrs. Conrad.

Mrs. Jackson Johnson had a merry party of little children with her in her box, all daintily gowned in white organdy and lace.

Judge Evans of the state Democratic committee entertained Mrs. W. A. Magrow, Mrs. Ben G. Vieth of Jefferson City, Miss Jess Brown, Mrs. Hal Woodside, Miss Gracia Woodside, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Chivers and Mrs. J. B. Lewis and Miss Martha Chivers with them.

In the adjoining box were Misses Emma Matt, Charlotte Matt, Mrs. C. A. Tilles, Mrs. Allison, A. B. Stock, Arnold Shandive, W. Merritt Albert, W. E. Northcutt.

Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Dale had boxes A and C, and with them were Misses Joyce of Washington, D. C., Miss Rebecca Plummer, Miss Mamie Lumaghi, Miss Lipscomb of Memphis, Tenn., Miss Moulton, Mrs. Drew, Mrs. E. L. Moulton, Miss Joyce of Baltimore, Md., Messrs. H. R. Boyd of Memphis, and Mr. Fucus.

In the upper boxes were: Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Cunningham, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Gray, Ernest Keller, W. L. Hennessey and B. E. Shank of Memphis, Tenn.

CONTRIBUTIONS SENT TO CHIEF KIELY.
Additional contributions received by the police department for the benefit of the families of Detectives Shea, Dwyer and McKluskey are as follows:
Wm. J. Lamp Brewing Co., $100; Ely & Walker Dry Goods Co., $50; John J. Manton, $10; Andrew Itner, $10; Rev. Edward Casey of St. James Church, $5; Thos. R. Collins, $10; M. A. Muth Dry Goods Co., $10; David & Joseph O'Neil, $15; G. F. Crowe, $5; Rosen-Reichardt Brokerage Co., $5.

National Guard Commissions.
JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Oct. 28.—Gov. Dockery today at the request of Adj. Gen. Walter T. Dameron, issued commissions to officers of the national guard as follows:
Missouri as follows: James McCollins, captain; W. H. D. Green, first lieutenant; and Mark D. Spangler, second lieutenant, all of Company K, Second regiment, with rank from Sept. 24, 1934.

Boxes Filled by Society Women
One very noticeable feature of the benefit was the predominance of young people in the audience. Mrs. Thomas K. Niedringhaus had Mrs. Houser as her guest and a party of young men and girls with her. Miss Madeline Houser and Miss Dorothy Niedringhaus, two pretty debutantes-to-be a few years hence—and John O'Fallon, Lockwood Hall and John Brown of Washington, D. C., were with Mrs. Niedringhaus. Mrs. Houser was in French gray and white lace and white plumed hat, and Mrs. Niedringhaus wore cream silk with

Benbow Airship Will Try to Fly at Fair
A description of the various craft. Where was Benbow? No one knew, and Percy Hudson was sent to bring him forth. When he came he was introduced to the president and the others and a conference ensued.

It must have been satisfactory, for Benbow retired, doffed his derby and long top coat and soon came back in his aeronautic rig.

The crowd inside the aerodrome knew by this that soon something would be doing and set up a cheer which was heard by those outside and the people rushed to the front of the building.

Benbow climbed into the hamper of his ship and touched off the motor. It chugged a few chugs and stopped. Several minutes were consumed in regulating the flow of gasoline and tuning up the carburetor to the proper mixture of air and vapor. Then Benbow spent a half hour warming up the motor, tightening the belt and running the fans or wings on the lighter.

Meanwhile the workers were trying to open the big door at the end. It is 90 feet high and almost as wide, and is made of striped cotton, such as is used in awnings, fastened to a wooden framework and hung on a track of rollers.

The door opened about three feet and stuck. Twenty men pushed and pulled, but it would not budge. It was like the old familiar folding doors between the parlor and dining room in a rented house in the suburbs. Three men with hammers and their climbing up into the twilight of the roof and began to hammer. Then they tried it again and gained a foot. More hammering. This time they pulled it back and lost a foot, and then it stuck.

Thought He Would Smash Records.
A half hour passed, during which Benbow climbed all over his ship tightening ropes. He got out his anchor and ran out about 50 feet of rope.

Meanwhile the men at the door had again gone aloft, and by tearing out a few yards of the track and a section of the building managed to slide the door back. The doors are so constructed that this performance is going through every time there is occasion to open them.

Two men led the captive balloon, looking like an obese sheep and quite as gentle and harmless, out of the aerodrome and tied it with a string to a peg in the lot.

The crowd grew wild with enthusiasm. The sandbags were cast off the "Meteor."

No, they didn't tug and pull, eager to be off into the blue eyrean. She rose from the ground about two feet, and bobbed around a little, like a fat lady dancing a slow two-step on a slippery floor.

Two men caught her by the bridle, that is, the wire stays that run from the upper framework to the bottom of the hamper, and another led her out of the building by the anchor rope, through the cheering crowd toward the north fence of the aeronautic course.

The cheering throng followed close, crowding and stumbling over one another to be in the front row.

"Stand back! Stand back!" shouted a dozen Jefferson Guards, rushing back upon the crowd.

"Give her air!" cried an excited Exposition director.

Jefferson Guards and the police drove the people away until they formed a large circle about the "Meteor," allowing few inside save aeronauts and President Francis.

Name of "Meteor"
Inspired Terror.
There was an air of timorous uncertainty among the guardians of the people, and the latter felt that fascinating, deadly-sweet fear that comes in the face of some great but unknown peril. Nobody knew just what the "Meteor" might do. The name itself was portentous. Everyone knows the customs and habits of meteors, which rush hissing through the air at a tremendous rate, smashing everything in their path, defying space and time, terrible bolts of destruction, and all that sort of thing. Suppose, then, thought that the "Meteor" should live up to her name and suddenly break her bonds, defying mere man, and rush through the throng, strike the aerodrome and tear it to pieces and continue on in its path of destruction to raze the World's Fair and the city beyond?

So they kept at a safe distance and peered gently at the airship with all their muscles taut for a sudden run to safety.

Suddenly Be-bow started his motor. The propellers began to revolve and the "Meteor" began to rise. It was just 5 o'clock.

A wild cheer rose from a thousand dusty throats.

But after going about 10 feet the "Meteor" began to sink again. She was not high enough for the fans to catch the wind fairly.

Roy Knabenshue, who sailed over the Fair and drifted 10 miles in the Baldwin airship Tuesday, who was grooming her, caught the "Meteor" as she rose, Mr. down, and running backward gave her a push upward.

She responded gracefully by going up about 10 feet. Then the men pulled her up to the level of the anchor rope which was attached to the forward end of the horizontal spar to which the gas bag is fastened. Up she went for about 40 feet, and sailed across the wind, which was blowing gently from the north-east along the north fence toward the west fence of the course. The crowd followed, cheering.

At the west fence the motor ceased chugging and Benbow says he was forced to land as he was unable to get the motor started.

Like Man Landing
Large Yellow Cow.
Again her groans seized her by the stays and pushed her into the air. It was as if she were unwilling to fly, and like a jaded racehorse had to be forced to work. But the motor started again, the propeller whirled and she was aloft. She sailed a short distance to the south, and in obedience to the rudder turned her face to the east and came slowly along the wall of the aerodrome about 20 feet from the ground and settled down peacefully a short distance from where she started.

Then she was led back to her stall and bedded down for the night, and Benbow climbed out of the basket, grasped the ladder by the top and escaped through the crowd.

"What did you think of it?" one prominent citizen asked another.

"I think," was the reply, "it looks like a man leading a large yellow cow by a rope around a lot."

But this was not a strictly true simile. That the "Meteor" did not soar was no fault of Benbow. True, it was not an exciting exhibition, and for several reasons.

In the first place the "Meteor" was not in the best condition to make a flight. The aerodrome is a new building, and the conditions to be ideal, as the day was growing dark and chilly. She proved her ability to go across the aerodrome, but the chill air contracted it until the bag was flabby, consequently she lacked buoyancy. She could hardly pick the car off the ground, and that she soared at all was the peculiar construction of the propellers. Benbow says he has been waiting patiently for a supply of live gas, which the Exposition company has been unable to give him. Had he gone up in the middle of the day when the sun would have improved his gas supply by expanding it, he would hardly have had enough gas for safety.

"In order to make a safe ascension it is necessary for the aeronaut to carry a certain amount of ballast," said an aeronaut at the aerodrome after Benbow's exhibition. "In its present condition the 'Meteor' is unable to do this. Should the gas bag begin to deflate while in the air the aeronaut should be able to unload ballast and so keep himself aloft until he came to a safe landing place, or avoid running into buildings or trees."

The Exposition company has had so many misfortunes at its airship plant that aeronauts are not properly backed up in their endeavor to make a safe ascension, or even sensational exhibits, and it was not until Baldwin, and his daring chauffeur, Knabenshue, broke the spell by going out and doing stunts that any of them was willing to do much.

Public Demands
Real Flights.
No one can blame Benbow for not wanting to go out and make a Roman holiday of himself for the benefit of the Exposition company alone. The company is beginning to realize that the public is getting a trifle impatient of the delay in the airship contests. The aeronauts have been here all summer under various excuses for a chance to do something, and although dealing in wind and gas and hot air is legitimately in their line of business they cannot be expected to live on that alone. As soon as they can get the right kind of gas and plenty of it they will go out and show the people what they can do. Then we will see the great French airship which is lying in the aerodrome ready to go out as soon as it gets gas. It is getting pretty late, and the Exposition company will have to get busy if it wants airship flights.

A description of the various craft. Where was Benbow? No one knew, and Percy Hudson was sent to bring him forth. When he came he was introduced to the president and the others and a conference ensued.

It must have been satisfactory, for Benbow retired, doffed his derby and long top coat and soon came back in his aeronautic rig.

The crowd inside the aerodrome knew by this that soon something would be doing and set up a cheer which was heard by those outside and the people rushed to the front of the building.

Benbow climbed into the hamper of his ship and touched off the motor. It chugged a few chugs and stopped. Several minutes were consumed in regulating the flow of gasoline and tuning up the carburetor to the proper mixture of air and vapor. Then Benbow spent a half hour warming up the motor, tightening the belt and running the fans or wings on the lighter.

Meanwhile the workers were trying to open the big door at the end. It is 90 feet high and almost as wide, and is made of striped cotton, such as is used in awnings, fastened to a wooden framework and hung on a track of rollers.

The door opened about three feet and stuck. Twenty men pushed and pulled, but it would not budge. It was like the old familiar folding doors between the parlor and dining room in a rented house in the suburbs. Three men with hammers and their climbing up into the twilight of the roof and began to hammer. Then they tried it again and gained a foot. More hammering. This time they pulled it back and lost a foot, and then it stuck.

ITCHING ECZEMA

In July, 1883, I began to break out with Eczema on my head, legs and arms, and began treatment with local doctors, but did not get much relief. They said the disease had become chronic. I then quit them and tried various ointments and soaps for another two years, but as soon as cold weather came I was as bad off as ever, so I finally decided to let medicine alone, and for twelve or thirteen years did nothing towards curing the Eczema, except bathing. This seemed to do about as much good as anything I had tried.

During the time I lost about one-half of my hair. I began S. S. S. doubtful of a cure, because the disease had run so long, but soon discovered your medicine was doing me good, and continued to take it. I used seven bottles, when I was completely cured, not having a single spot on my body, which before was almost completely covered.

1017 Hackberry Street, Ottumwa, Ia.

The head, feet and hands are usually the parts affected, though the disease appears on other parts of the body. While external applications allay the itching and burning temporarily, it is the acids thrown off by the blood that cause the irritation and eruptions upon the skin. S. S. S. neutralizes these acids and cleanses the blood of all humors and poisons and builds up the entire system. S. S. S. is guaranteed entirely free of Potash, Arsenic and other minerals. Our book on the skin and its diseases will be sent free. Medical advice furnished without charge.

C. L. Hilleary.

After Nov. 1 C. L. Hilleary, who, since last October, has been traffic manager at the World's Fair, will return to the Big Four railway as assistant general passenger agent. He will have charge of all passenger traffic east of St. Louis and in addition the business of the Pacific coast and all states south of Missouri, including the republic of Mexico.

President Francis accepted with regret Mr. Hilleary's resignation, and his departure from the World's Fair where he has made many friends, is regretted.

Railroad men are glad to learn that Mr. Hilleary is soon to be back among them. His headquarters will be in St. Louis.

NO ROOF OVER HIS BED FOR 20 YEARS

Aged Hermit, Feeling His End Approaching, Visits Scenes of Former Life at Belleville.

Gaunt with hunger, an old man, with long white hair and beard and clothes tattered, tottered into the Belleville police station Thursday night and sank to the floor. In a hoarse whisper he begged for food.

He was Jacob Ritch, who, 29 years ago, became a hermit and a man of the woods because of misfortune and bereavement, and for that length of time has lived the life of a wild man among the timbered hills of southern Illinois.

Twenty years ago Ritch was a fairly prosperous farmer near O'Fallon, in St. Clair County. He had a wife and two children. It was his dearest desire and also of his wife to return to their old home in Iowa. They were saving their money for that purpose.

They had saved almost enough when Ritch was swindled and lost all. Shortly afterward his wife and both of his children died.

Completely disheartened, Ritch abandoned everything and wandered away. After that he was seldom seen. He lived the life of a hermit in the woods.

After he had been given food at the Belleville police station Thursday night something of how he had been living was gleaned from him. He said that in 20 years he had not slept in a house and in all that time he had not eaten more than one meal a day, which he had begged at farmhouses.

If a tramp came upon him in the woods, he said, and asked to share the warmth of his fire he always made him welcome, but withdrew and made another fire for himself.

He presented the appearance of a veritable Rip Van Winkle, with his white hair and beard, his tattered clothes and his bent form.

He said he had been roaming all over southern Illinois and feeling that his end was approaching he yielded to an impulse to travel back to scenes of his old home. Thursday he was sent to the county hospital for treatment.

WOMAN LEADER TO END VISIT
Mrs. May Wright Sewall will Make Final Talk Saturday.

Mrs. May Wright Sewall, honorary president of the International Council of Women, will speak for the last time during her present visit to St. Louis Saturday morning in the Florence Crittenton mansion at the World's Fair. She also speaks this afternoon.

The talks made by Mrs. Sewall relate entirely to matters concerning the advancement of women along all lines. Among those attending the meetings addressed by Mrs. Sewall is Sara C. Kocleston of Buenos Ayres, representing the president of the National Council of Women of Argentina.

English R. A. M. C. Officer to Join War.

Captain A. W. Newman Casey, M. D., who served with great distinction during the long African campaign, who was Captain of the British R. A. M. C. (Royal Army Medical Corps) and who was detailed to St. Helena towards the close of the war to care for the health of General Villon and his companions who were in exile there, is a passenger on the steamship "Saxonia," from Queenstown, Ireland, to take charge of the Boer War Hospital Corps. He will go on the road with the present company immediately after the close of the World's Fair.

A very interesting coincidence in regard to the appointment of Captain Casey to take charge of the hospital, is worth relating. By his great kindness and courtesy to General Her Villon, Captain Casey attached himself very deeply to the hearts of all the Boers in exile. When General Villon said "good-by" to Captain Casey he little thought that he would be able to return the kindness of his benefactor. Occasion has now arisen for him to do so, and as Captain Casey is anxious to see something of America, General Villon was able to suggest his appointment to the vacant position, and return some of Captain Casey's previous kindnesses.

THIS MINISTER FOUND PLATFORMS ALIKE IN CHURCH AND POLITICS

Pastor of Be'llville Methodist Church Was Formerly Stump Speaker, But Now His Platform Adopted for the Congregation Contains Only Three Planks.

Before Rev. W. H. Pool of Be'llville was a preacher he was a political speaker. In politics he found a platform was a good thing for a party. When he became a preacher he decided that a platform might be a good thing for a church and he has always stood on a platform in his religious work, the planks of which have been determined by conditions.

At the beginning of his campaign in Be'llville as pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, to which he has just been appointed, Rev. Pool announced a platform containing three planks. They are: "We believe in being religious; we believe in being sociable and we believe in excluding common sense."

He has asked the members of the church to stand with him on this platform and the advantages of having a platform in religious work are already becoming manifest.

It was while he was teaching in Friendsville Seminary, Friendsville, Wabash County, Ind., his native town, that Rev. Pool decided, in 1889, to enter the ministry. He had been educated in common schools and at the Friendsville Seminary, where he taught country schools and went stumping in local and national campaigns before that.

He was appointed to the church at West Liberty, Ill. Afterward he was two years at Noble, three years at Churemont, four years at Albion and four years at Effingham.

He has been transferred from that place to Be'llville; his transfers involving also his transfer from the Olney to the Lebanon district. He was sent from another district to take charge of the Be'llville church because he was believed to have peculiar fitness for that place. His position at Effingham was very successful. The church was $2000 in debt when he took charge of it and while he was there this was paid off and $2000 expended in improvements. Rev. Pool has not won greater favor in Be'llville than his wife, whose winning manner has made her instantly popular. Rev. Pool married her during his first year in the ministry, at West Liberty. She was on her way from her home in Ohio to California and stopped at West Liberty to visit friends. She was prevailed upon to stay there and teach the village school. She attended the Methodist church and within a year she was the pastor's wife.

WHY APPENDICITIS?

Why is appendicitis so common today? Because we have got into the pernicious habit of eating too fast.

Dr. Curtis, the great authority on this disease, says: "Appendicitis often follows the eating of a very heavy, or particularly large or indigestible meal."

After carefully following a foolish custom, you can ensure your safety by taking Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

It is an accepted scientific truth, which admits of no dispute, that if you will only keep your digestive apparatus in good order, you will never suffer from this dread disease, which, at best, means a weakening operation, with long weeks wasted in bed, and big doctor's and surgeon's bills to pay as souvenirs.

Keep your appendix in health by the proper use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, whenever you have laid yourself open to danger by overeating, and upon the least sign of stomach or intestinal trouble, for otherwise, at any time, this dangerous disease may lay you low.

The curative influence of this great medicine is quickly shown in the gentle, soothing effect it has on all inflamed conditions of any part of the digestive tract.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets tone all these parts up to a proper condition of perfect health, and regulate their functions into a proper working state.

They also make away with all the causes of irritation, inflammation or indigestion, by helping to dissolve, digest and assimilate, or put to proper use, all the food which is lying around in odd corners of your digestive apparatus, fermenting, rotting and curdling, like so much garbage in a dirty sink.

In these natural and perfectly simple ways, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets restore all sufferers, from any form of dyspeptic trouble, to health.

They are safe and reliable. They never fail to relieve and cure, quickly and permanently. Use them, and you need never worry about your appendix verminiformis.

WHERE MILLIONS ARE MADE.

Interesting Letter That May Mean Much to Residents of St. Louis.

Probably there is not a reader of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch who has not heard of the fortunes made in the Beaumont oil fields. While the tales of fortunes quickly made are interesting, they are really not half as valuable to our readers as the following letter from L. K. Preston, president of the Caswell-Preston Drug Company of Beaumont, one of the largest wholesale and retail houses in Texas.

Mr. Preston writes "Enclosed you will find a letter that came to us unsolicited from J. C. Reeves, 770 Pearl street. I have known Mr. Reeves for several years. He is a reliable man and very happy over his fortune."

"About four years ago," writes Mr. Reeves, "I lost the hearing in my right ear and about three or four months ago my left ear became deaf. In fact, I was so bad that people had to shout at me to make me hear. I had about given up in despair all hopes of ever recovering my hearing when I saw that you recommended Hyomei. I used two bottles and can now hear my watch tick with either ear, and my hearing is now all right. This deafness must have been caused from catarrh, for it is now cured. Hyomei certainly does what you claim for it."

Hyomei has made many cures of catarrh, and in combination with Hyomei balm, of catarrhal deafness in St. Louis and nearby towns. Judge & Dolph and Wolff-Wilson give their personal guarantee to refund the money should it not give quick relief. The complete Hyomei outfit costs but one dollar, while extra bottles can be obtained for fifty cents.

CONSTABLE CHARGED WITH ASKING BRIBE

Wm. B. Davis of Belleville Arrested on Warrant Issued in East St. Louis.

Charged with attempting to extort a bribe for allowing a slot machine to remain in the saloon of Joe Guetermann in East St. Louis in violation of the state law, William B. Davis, a constable of Belleville, has been arrested and will receive a preliminary hearing next Monday.

Davis, who works from Justice Wangelin's court in Belleville, started out Thursday afternoon to seize slot machines. He took a wagon and driver with him and started for East St. Louis. The first saloon he visited was that of Guetermann at Fourth street and Trembley avenue. There he found a slot machine, which he is said to have carried out and loaded into his wagon, then starting to drive off.

Before he had gone far, it is charged, he was approached by a man whom he had seen in the saloon and asked how much he wanted to bring the machine back. An argument is said to have followed and Davis is said to have thrown the machine out of the wagon. He was arrested soon afterwards on a warrant issued by Justice Boyne of North Main street, East St. Louis, on a charge of soliciting a bribe. Davis gave bond for $300 and was released.

STUDENTS COME 1200 STRONG

State University Day at World's Fair Being Celebrated by Exercises and Football Game.

Special trains over the "Katy" arrived at Union Station Friday morning, bringing nearly 1200 students from the State University at Columbia to the World's Fair to celebrate University day at the Exposition.

Immediately upon arrival the students were taken to the World's Fair in street cars. They marched through the grounds to the Missouri building, where University day exercises were held. The students were accompanied by the faculty, the glee club and the cadet band.

The football team, accompanied by 100 spectators, arrived in the city Thursday night and went immediately to the St. James Hotel, where the team retired early to rest for the game this afternoon with Purdue University.

The cadet band and the glee club had prominent parts in the exercises at the Missouri building. President Francis, M. F. Davis of the Missouri commission, and Hiram Phillips of the Alumni association, welcomed the students to the fair. Responses were made by President Jesse of the university and Dr. George Ladd of the Rolla School of Mines. Addresses were made also by members of the alumni.

A terrible railroad accident and no loss of life will be reproduced at the Delmar Race Track Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Two monster locomotives carrying passenger cars will collide and hurl tons of iron and steel high in the air. Thousands will witness this unique performance.

PHILIPPINE AUDITOR NAMED

Herbert S. Stone, chief of the department of publicity of the Philippine exposition at the World's Fair, has been appointed by Gov. Luke E. Wright of the Philippines to fill the vacancy made by A. L. Lawshe, auditor of the islands on the Philippine exposition board, who becomes chairman of the exposition. Mr. Stone will enter upon his new duties at once.

Mr. Lawshe, who came to St. Louis to audit the Philippine exposition accounts, will remain as chairman of the board until the Philippine matters are entirely closed up. Mr. Stone is the son of Melville E. Stone of Chicago, general manager of the Associated Press. In May he took charge of the publicity department of the Philippine exposition.

ASPHALT ODORS ANNOYING

Complaints have been made to the board of health by 60 residents of the vicinity of

Nowstand and Race Course avenues, asking the board to declare an asphalt plant in the neighborhood a nuisance on account of the disagreeable odors which are alleged to come from it. The complaints were made at the meeting of the board Thursday afternoon. The company was represented by one of its officers and by counsel. It was stated that the plant had closed for the winter and that there was no odor except when it is in operation.

Although the complainants desired the matter taken up at once, the board continued the case for two weeks. At that time if the plant resumes operations the board will determine whether or not it is a nuisance.

Woman Who Pleads Love's Promptings Led Her to Poison Stepdaughter

Mrs. Ray M. Krauss.

PLEADS HER LOVE PROMPTED MURDER OF STEPDAUGHTER

Mrs. Ray M. Krauss Hands Judge Written Confession That She Poisoned Crystal Krauss—Is Sentenced to Prison For Life.

HARTFORD CITY, Ind., Oct. 28.—Following her indictment by the grand jury for the poisoning of her stepdaughter, Crystal Krauss, Mrs. Ray M. Krauss, pleaded guilty to a charge of murder in the first degree, and walking calmly to the bench, handed Judge Vaughn a signed confession, written Oct. 16, while prisoner in the Blackford County jail.

The audience listened intently while the confession was being read, after which the jury retired for fifteen minutes, returning with a verdict of guilty, immediately Judge Vaughn pronounced sentence, which carries with it imprisonment for life in the women's prison at Indianapolis, and within half an hour the prisoner, escorted by two officers and followed by a mob, hissing and uttering cries of violence, was on her way to the interurban train, which was to carry her to prison.

The confession pleads that the crime was committed while the defendant was dispossessed of her senses; that she had confessed to her husband, W. R. Krauss, that she was prompted to poison her stepdaughter by an insupportable desire to kill, and after dealing at length with the domestic relations of the family, which the confession says were most pleasant, concludes with an invocation of God's help in supplying strength to bear the sorrow she endures.

The confession in part is:

"While I have said that I was guilty of the deed, at the time I did not realize the awfulness of the crime, nor did I give thought of what the consequences would be to our home, Crystal, my husband, or myself; I did not stop to consider; if I had thought it over, it would never have been done.

"I could think of nothing but just to do it. I tried to get away from it, but each time it would come back so much stronger."

CASTORIA.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Beware the Signature of J. C. Hendrix

ST. As I look back now it seems as if some demon had hold of my mind and I could not free myself from it.

"I got it into my head that her father was worried and troubled on account of Crystal being determined to keep company with that boy. That is the only reason I had for the deed. I got it into my head that if I did it, there would be nothing to worry me.

"You can see how little I looked ahead or realized the trouble I was bringing on my husband and myself. All the time I was with him, my one wish was to take as many cares from him as I could in any way possible. There was nothing I would not have sacrificed to have made my husband and Crystal happier. In our home life my husband, Crystal and I were perfectly happy. If that one thought had not gotten into my head or if I had strength of mind to throw it off, all would have been well and happy today.

"This was not done because I had any grudge against or dislike for Crystal, for I did not. I dearly loved the child and no one misers her more than I do since this terrible thing has happened. In our home life Crystal and I never had a word of contention between us and I was always delighted to see her happy and having a good time. She was so bright and sweet, I loved to be with her.

"If it had not been for this one thing coming up, there would never have been anything but happiness in all our lives. I have one consolation in all my sufferings, and it lightens my burdens, too, to know that while I was there I made her home life happy for her. I never spared myself in any way. I took the most of the work on myself.

"When she wanted to entertain I dropped everything else and helped her with that. When she wanted company to meal, it was always ready and delighted to do it for her, and so did everything in my power that her company would have a pleasant time while there. Everything is now past and cannot be undone. Oh! If I only could I would give my life in a moment."

"I can see things so different now, but alas, it is too late."

Crystal Krauss, daughter of W. R. Krauss, a prominent and wealthy druggist, died Aug. 2 last of strychnine poisoning. The theory of suicide, the only foundation for which was the finding of two notes alleging suicide, was almost instantly discredited in the light of subsequent developments. Dissimilarity between the penmanship in the notes and the choreography of the dead girl was discovered by the other.

The story was told by a milk boy to the effect that he had, on the night previous to the death of Crystal Krauss, gone to a drug store for Mrs. Krauss, to get some rat poison. A coroner's inquest was held, and within one week Mrs. Krauss was arrested and placed in jail.

Since her incarceration Mrs. Krauss received frequent visits from her husband, who refused to give expression to his views regarding his wife's connection with his daughter's death. Through his instrumentality the confession was obtained.

The social prominence of the family gave more than usual notoriety to the case. Previous to Crystal's death the Krauss home was the social center of Hartford City. Mrs. Krauss is the daughter of W. H. Anderson, a prominent physician, who, after his daughter's arrest, sold his practice and left the city.

Atterbury System The Clothes of Gentility

ATTERBURY CLOTHES, though ready-to-wear, must not be confused with the machine-made quantities by the large manufacturers.

If we produced clothing of that character we would simply be part of a large procession, whereas there is not a detail of our garments that is not handmade. We are aware and so are you that no matter how much printers' ink is spilled in contrary assertion, distinctive, finished, perfect fitting clothes cannot be produced by machinery. They never have been and they never will be until machinery is endowed with human skill and human brains. Every man engaged in the construction of ATTERBURY GARMENTS is on our own premises, and unless he is a skilled tailor, equipped with all the attributes that make for artistic effort, he has no employment in our institution. This is a gigantic tailor shop—not a manufactory—and our methods of operation are necessarily those employed by the leading sartorial artists in America.

PRESIDENT WILL DEFEND HIMSELF IN OPEN LETTER

Parker's Speeches and World's Editorials on Cortelyou Scandal to Be Replied To by Mr. Roosevelt Personally. Contrary to Friends' Advice.

WANTED TO TAKE STUMP BUT WAS DISSUADED.

Letter Now in Preparation Is Addressed to Senator Lodge, Who Will Give It Out for Publication—Others Not Fully Settled.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
 WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—The sledge-hammer blows recently delivered by Judge Parker in his addresses, and the editorials of the World calling the attention of the country to the Cortelyou scandal, have aroused the President to the danger to his presidential campaign, and he contemplates taking vigorous measures to answer them. It is probable that the answer will be made by the President himself, an unprecedented course in American politics. Recently the President urged Chairman Cortelyou to reply, but it is understood upon very high authority that Mr. Cortelyou advised ignoring everything. This angered the President, and he declared he would answer himself. He is said to have declared that he would take the stump himself, but such an undignified course was decided, and the President finally agreed to be content to write to a couple of well-known Republicans and permit the letter to be given to the press.

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts has been selected as one of these, and it is understood, the President is now at work on the letter, although many of his friends are urging him not to pursue this course. In his letter, the President will reply to the attack on the fiscal policy of the administration. It is the Cortelyou scandal, however, that most irritates the President, and this will be prominently treated in the letter.

5000 Men and Boys Will Enlist in the ranks at the Globe's great clothing sale tomorrow.

PEACE FLAG PROVOKES CHEERS

New Thought Convention Delegates Show Enthusiasm at Sight of New Ensign.

Consideration of a new constitution for the New Thought Federation was begun at the business meeting held this morning in the east nave of the Coliseum, Thirtieth and Olive streets. The new constitution differs in only a few respects from the old, and it is expected it will be adopted before the adjournment of the federation this evening.

Miss Anna Tremaine of New York received the applause of a large audience, which filled the hall Thursday afternoon, when she introduced to the federation a peace flag, the American flag bordered in white and bearing the inscription, "Peace to All Nations." One address which attracted special interest on the part of members of the federation was on "New Thought and Recent Discoveries in Science," a consideration of the relationship of new thought, philosophy and science, by Rev. Henry Frank of New York.

An informal reception was given the delegates by the officers and speakers of the federation Thursday afternoon.

FIREMEN TO ATTEND FUNERAL

Burial Arrangements Not Completed for Driver Run Over by Horse Reel.

Arrangements for the funeral of Driver Charles Miller, 26 years old, of engine company No. 7, who died at his home, 2609 Chouteau avenue, at 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon after being run over by the horse reel which he was driving while running to a fire, have not been completed. Firemen of company No. 7 and other companies are preparing to attend the funeral, which is expected to be held at 10 o'clock Friday morning at the residence of Miller's father, at 2300 North Broadway. Miller was thrown from his reel at Ewing and Chouteau avenues at noon, as the cart suddenly swerved from the cart tracks. The wheels passed over his abdomen and his chest.

Miller is survived by his widow and mother. He had been a fireman for two years.

GEORGE BAKER

WOMAN SAYS SUSPECT BAKER KNEW MORRIS

Chief Desmond Believes Connection of Man Hurt by Nitro-Glycerin Explosion With Train Robber Gang Will Be Shown.

Little by little the record of George Baker, the man with half a dozen aliases, who was arrested Sunday night after the nitro-glycerin explosion which wrecked the front of the real estate office at 612 Chestnut street, is being learned through the unceasing efforts of Chief of Detectives Desmond.

By piecing together fragments of information wrung from Agnes Jones, Baker's closest acquaintance, scanty admissions from the man himself, facts gathered from the city, Chief Desmond has established that Baker is a dangerous crook and was on familiar terms with the Morris-Vaughan gang, slayers of three detectives in the bat-

At 10:15 a. m. last week, a man in a dark suit and tie, who was identified as a police officer, called on the telephone to the home of Mrs. J. H. Baker, 1106 Chouteau avenue, and asked to see her. She answered the door and the man, who was identified as a police officer, asked to see her. She answered the door and the man, who was identified as a police officer, asked to see her. She answered the door and the man, who was identified as a police officer, asked to see her.

He also admitted that she had received money from Baker from Mattson at about the time that Findley, the telegraph operator, was robbed by Morris.

Baker denied all that the woman had admitted to Desmond. He said he had made the woman his common law wife in New York. His attempt to establish a form of common law marriage was based on the fact that the woman knew that he had married her and he revealed and that she was trying to keep the matter so that she could not be compelled to testify against him.

Baker has admitted breaking jail at the New York State Prison and several others have tried to break out of the prison and were captured by the police.

He said that he escaped jail at Kingsville, Mo., and was captured by the police.

He has expressed a wish to be sent to the penitentiary, but he would rather have the money to go to the city of New York, where he would be able to work, and he would be able to support his family. He is now in the city of New York, where he is working as a clerk in a store. He is now in the city of New York, where he is working as a clerk in a store. *COLUMBIA LONG
ON BLACK EYES*

Squad Still Badly Bruised as Result of Hard Game Against Penn.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Coach Morley is now giving the Columbia football team a special course in the gymnasium on Saturday against Pennsylvania, added to a most severe period of preparatory practice for Yale on Saturday. It was deemed necessary to give the players a special drill in the gymnasium, in addition, a short respite.

The trainers at Morningside seem to expect a rather optimistic view in regard to the condition of the eleven.

Feeling no ill effects from Saturday's ordeal. The individual appearance of the team is not too good.

There is but a few exceptions the members of the squad look pretty well battered up. Finnegan, the big center, bears the brunt of the team's misfortune in the rough encounter. His left eye is discolored and his face is covered with bruises.

His right eye is completely hidden from view, and his nose, left tackle, is in the same bad way.

The Columbia students assembled in the gymnasium to witness the game were disappointed in vain regrets. Although discouraged over the outcome of the last year's game, they still have confidence in their eleven.

WESTERN UNION QUILTS SENDING DELMAR REPORTS

When the announcement was made some time ago that the Western Union Telegraph company had discontinued its race book, it was taken with a grain of salt by those who believed that the Western Union really intended to abolish its pool room service, which was a habit to many of the doubters at Delmar yesterday when the telegraph company's representative admitted that he had to wipe out sections of the races at the various poolrooms. Investigation proved that the Western Union Telegraph Company does not belong to the poolrooms. If the poolrooms desire the service now it must be bought from a third party, and it is better to transact the business in a legal way than to be interested in the poolrooms.

could not go out of doors. My son sent me some Vinol. I commenced to take it and it has simply worked wonders for me. I feel better and stronger than I have for years, and my cough is all gone." "You see," said Mr. Wolff, "Vinol contains in a concentrated form all the strengthening, healing properties of cod liver oil, but without a drop of oil or grease to upset the stomach, and no sugar, and for this reason it is so remarkably good for your chronic cough and cold, builds up and invigorates the weak and aged, makes rich, red blood, cures stomach troubles and restores the convalescent to perfect health. "We just wish every aged, run down or debilitated person in St. Louis would try Vinol on our guarantee to return the money paid for it every time it fails."

mayne of Cincinnati at the head of the concern. The business of supplying pool-rooms with the "best" of the wain is immensely profitable adjunct to the Westerner's profession. The agitation against the gambler's East coast was Russell's gambler, R. Jessup, and other big bookkeepers, who tried to bring to a halt against the company mixing into the common carrier.

INCENDIARY FIRE COSTS ONE LIFE AND $1,000,000

South Brooklyn Docks Burned and Four Ocean Steamers are Damaged in Spectacular Blaze Starting From Many Points at Same Time.

CREWS OF VESSELS ARE NOT ALL ACCOUNTED FOR

Controversy Between Bush Terminal Company and Residents Over Closing Streets is Bitter—Suspicion Aroused After Fire Several Days Ago.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Fire believed to have been of incendiary origin swept over the piers, warehouses and shipping at the Bush Terminal Co.'s stores, South Brooklyn, early today. The loss is estimated at more than $1,000,000. One life, that of a policeman, is known to have been lost, and other dead may be found later. A fireman was badly injured.

Four fine ocean-going steamers were badly damaged, having been ablaze from bow to stern, and hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of cotton, hemp and the general cargo that the China ships bring in were partially destroyed.

After a battle of more than three hours by the entire Brooklyn department, the flames were pronounced under control.

At first the fire could make no headway. Fanned by a strong breeze, the smoke from the burning hemp prevented the men from approaching one section of the fire, while the blaze in the burning cotton and in the holds of the steamships could not be affected by the water.

The known dead: Policeman Patrick Cushing of Brooklyn, caught at the end of Pier 6.

Injured: Benjamin Walsh, fireman, skull fractured in a fall down a hatchway. Walsh lay in the hold of the Citta di Palermo for two hours while fire on the vessel was all around him.

As to the fate of the crews of the ships nothing definite is known. The vessels were the American, Arctonian and Nebraska, of the American and Hawaiian Steamship Co., and the Citta di Palermo of the Italian line.

They were warped tightly to the pier and the tugs could not get alongside owing to the intense heat.

Second Fire

Within Week.

That the fire is of incendiary nature is the belief of two private detectives and two watchmen. Last Tuesday morning fire in one of the many piers of the company also started mysteriously and destroyed $50,000 to $75,000 worth of cotton.

Much ill feeling is said to exist between the Terminal company and some of the residents of the neighborhood because the company desired to close certain South Brooklyn streets. After Tuesday's fire the company employed private detectives.

From the lighter Victor, according to the patrol detectives on pier No. 7, almost on the stroke of midnight came a shaft of fire which shot between them and the end of the pier, and almost simultaneously between them and the shore came another bolt. In an instant, the men declare, the flames had spread in every direction. Escape was cut off and within five minutes after giving the alarm to the watchmen and crews aboard the ship acted as a wall against the flames and prevented their spread. The steamship was abandoned to her fate.

The spread of the fire was declared to be astounding. In ten minutes the long pier was blazing from end to end and the flames had caught a steamer.

Crew's Escape

Was Cut Off.

The calls of the men aboard were heard, but they could not be reached from land for the flames arching over the high steamship fell upon the lighter Adelaide and over to pier No. 8 where were stored thousands of bales of cotton and hemp.

It was then that steps were taken to save the rest of the pier with millions of dollars of shipping and cargoes. It was seen that the Citta di Palermo, discharging at Pier No. 6, was the best safeguard for the iron sides of the ship acted as a wall against the flames and prevented their spread. The steamship was abandoned to her fate.

Cushing lost his life. It is believed, when he made a reckless dash through the flames out to the pier to give the alarm to any person who might be aboard the ship. The fire cut off his return and a moment later a square of roofing fell over the spot. An unknown fireman, caught in the same manner, jumped into the water. His fate is not known.

The damaged vessels were all new, except the Citta di Palermo of the Italian line.

TABLET CAUSES ARGUMENT

Names of Board Members Being Chiseled in City Hall.

Workmen are diligently chiseling away on the tablet at the entrance to the new City Hall, inscribing the names of the members of the board of public improvements, despite a dispute between the members of the board and the City Hall commission as to whose names should appear on the tablet. There is a prospect that the cutters will finish before the dispute ends.

The members of the City Hall commission include Mayor Welch, President Phillips, Comptroller Player, Treasurer Francis, President Hornby of the City Council and Speaker Gustafson of the House of Delegates. They declare the board of public improvements has held a merely negative part in the erection of the building. The names which are now being cut on the tablet are Mayor Welch, President Phillips, Street Commissioner Varrelmann, Water Commissioner Adkins, Sewer Commissioner Vallente, Harbor Commissioner Whyte and Park Commissioner Aull.

Charged With Theft by Girl.

James Graham, formerly in charge of a coffee display in the Agricultural building at the World's Fair, has been arrested on complaint of Miss Edith Griffith, who has a souvenir stand in the same building, who charges him with having stolen $150 from her booth. The warrant was issued in Clayton. Graham was arrested at Union Station, as he was preparing to take a train for New York. He was turned over to the county authorities by the police and was taken to Clayton.

NO REASON FOR TAKING DRUG

P. P. Dowdy, 41 years old, a World's Fair visitor from Searcy, Ark., stopping at the Portland hotel, who took an overdose of morphine before getting into a barber's chair in a shop at 1901 Market street, has refused to give any reason for taking the drug.

GIRL WHO SAID SHE HAD FOUR FIANCES
CHOOSES A HUSBAND

MRS. JESSE J. RUBLING.

At Time She Jilted Former Suitor, Young Woman Now a Bride, Pleaded Obligations to Three Other Men.

Miss Alice M. Green, after being engaged to four young men, has decided which of the four is likely to wear best, and has made the other three miserable by becoming his wife. The lucky man is Jesse J. Rubling of Wellston.

Miss Green made it known last December just after she had failed to keep an appointment with a young man who had bought a marriage license and engaged a minister to wed them, that she was engaged at that time to four men, which explained, she thought, why it was unreasonable for one of them to expect her to get married and reduce her opportunities for enjoyment by three-fourths.

She would have been married at that time, though, if she had not decided that it would be more fun to go to a ball.

It was Dec. 4, 1903, late in the afternoon, that Miss Green accompanied William Enderby of De Hodiamont to Clayton, where he obtained a license to marry her. He had already bought the wedding ring.

On the way back she said she would stop off at De Hodiamont while he proceeded to the home of her aunt on Von Verden avenue to complete the preparations for the wedding, which was to take place there in the evening.

Enderby dutifully did as Miss Green suggested, summoned a minister and waited, but Miss Green did not come.

After he had waited long enough he started out to hunt her. He heard she had gone to a ball at Wellston. Accompanied by Miss Green's aunt he went to the ball and found Miss Green dancing and enjoying herself.

She was called to one side and there was a little conference. Those who were watching saw her hand to Enderby the engagement ring he had given her, and Enderby and Miss Green's aunt left the ball.

The next day Enderby left the city and went to Omaha.

Miss Green, in discussing her change of mind, casually remarked that she was also engaged to a man at Pacific, Mo., where her parents live, and to another at St. James, Mo. Some of her friends said she was also engaged to a Wellston man, who was at the ball and with whom she danced, or at least he considered that she was engaged to him.

He was probably right in supposing that she was engaged to him, for she went to Clayton to marry him, and she was Jesse J. Rubling, Thursday afternoon, and a second time her name went on a marriage license.

MARRIED WOMAN
NOT A FIANCEE

SPECIAL TO THE POST-DISPATCH.
DECATUR, Ill., Oct. 28.—Mrs. Cora Shersmith of this city, who on Wednesday in the Platt County circuit court lost her breach of promise suit against Archibald M. Ryan of Burrowsville, has been married to Edward Purtlebaugh of this city. She is 30 years old and has been married three times.

Mrs. Shersmith's case in the Platt County circuit court was dismissed because it was shown that at the time the plaintiff alleged the engagement was made with Ryan, she was still married to Shersmith.

CONDEMN ALL ROCK
RIVER BRIDGES

SPECIAL TO THE POST-DISPATCH.
STERLING, Ill., Oct. 28.—Because the board of supervisors of Whiteside and Rock island counties did not get the consent of the war department to erect a bridge over Rock river, at a cost of $40,000, the structure will have to be removed.

Another bridge is now being constructed across Rock river at Sterling, and it was learned today that the bridge is being illegally erected, and the $100,000 structure will have to be removed.

The war department holds that Rock river is a navigable stream, and that bridges cannot be erected without the consent of Congress or the approval of the war department, and that all bridges so erected must be removed. Four bridges across the river were erected under the same conditions.

WIND MAKES WOMAN AUTOMOBILE VICTIM

World's Fair Visitor, Stopping to Recover Hat, Injured by Rapidly Moving Vehicle.

A gust of wind which blew off the hat of Mrs. W. H. McLain of Shreveport, La., was also the cause Friday of her being run down by an automobile, at Leffingwell avenue and Locust street. She is thought to have received serious injuries.

Mrs. McLain has been staying with her husband at the Crescent Hotel, Leffingwell avenue and Locust street, while they saw the World's Fair. She left the hotel at 9:45 o'clock Friday forenoon and started across the street. The automobile of L. E. Schuck of 2319 A Olive street, in charge of chauffeur R. B. Legg, and containing, besides the chauffeur, three men, guests of the Jefferson Hotel, who were being taken out to see the city, was approaching from the east.

Mrs. McLain had almost reached the north curb, when her hat was blown off. She turned back to pick it up.

Legg says he thought she would continue to the south curb and wait for the automobile to pass, and he steered the machine to the north side of the street. But Mrs. McLain again turned north, and Legg says, walked in front of the machine.

Legg applied the brakes and stopped the auto up on the curb, but Mrs. McLain was struck by the headlight and thrown to one side.

She was unconscious when she was picked up. She was carried into the Keely Institute, on the corner, where she revived. Her husband was sent for and he had her removed to St. John's Hospital. At the hospital it is stated that it has not been determined how serious her injuries are.

Legg was arrested and taken to the Eighth district station at Twenty-ninth and Market streets, and locked up. The auto, which was not considerably damaged, was left on the street.

FIRST ACCIDENT ON SUBWAY
Girl Crushed Between Car and Platform in Underground.
NEW YORK Oct. 28.—The first serious accident since the formal opening of the subway occurred today when a young woman named Sadie Lawson of Jersey City fell between a platform and a local train at the Fourteenth street station and was badly crushed. She has a fractured hip and bruises of a more or less serious nature, but will recover.

When the rush hour scheduled went into effect today everything in the subway was in perfect order and the big downtown crowd was handled with little trouble.

FATALLY BEAT WIFE; KILLED HIMSELF

Financial Troubles Thought to Have Been Cause of Tragedy on Iowa Farm.

DES MOINES, Io., Oct. 28.—William Peddicord, a farmer living about eight miles southwest of Perry, attacked his wife with a club this morning, inflicting injuries from which she cannot recover, and then killed himself.

Peddicord and his wife arose early and went to the barnyard to do the milking and it was there the attack on the woman was made. One of their children became alarmed at the prolonged absence of the parents and discovered the mother unconscious from horrible bruises and Peddicord's body nearby.

The family is well-respected, and apparently well-to-do, although it has developed that Peddicord owed $1200 of which his wife was ignorant, and he feared the revelation of their true financial condition, the farm being a legacy to Mrs. Peddicord and in her name.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

Founded by JOSEPH PULITZER. Published by
THE PULITZER PUBLISHING CO., 210 112 N. BROADWAY.
Mr. Fairbanks almost hurried for Ziegenhein.

Perhaps Admiral Boozoffski was in command of the Baltic fleet.

Around the world for 20 cents—that is the offer made by the Fair managers for November.

THE COCK WALBRIDGE PAR.

The Post-Dispatch is receiving hints that its campaign against the re-election of Secretary of State Cook, on account of his participation in the Speed-Lyons boodle deal and other disqualifying acts, may endanger the election of Joseph W. Folk, because it may incite Mr. Cook's friends to retaliate by scratching Mr. Folk.

This is both, the source of, and reason for which are manifest. Any friends of Mr. Cook who would scratch a Democratic candidate like Joseph W. Folk, because the Post-Dispatch publishes the truth about Cook, is an enemy to the Democratic party and the people. The sooner the party is rid of such men the better.

We do not believe that Mr. Folk's election is endangered by the anti-Cook campaign, but we do believe that Mr. Folk's campaign is weakened by Mr. Cook's candidacy on the ticket. We do believe that the nomination of Cook, who was admittedly a participant in a boodle deal, on a reform platform and a ticket headed by the man who represents the anti-boodle sentiment of the people was a terrible blunder. It invited discord and disaster. It is the discordant and damaging blot on an otherwise admirable Democratic campaign.

The Post-Dispatch believes that Mr. Folk will be triumphantly elected for what he officially stands for and it is contributing to the best of its ability to his election, but the Post-Dispatch is an independent newspaper, under neither the control nor influence of any party, faction or politician. It fights Mr. Cook on principle as a man barred by his record as a law-breaker and an ally of the corporation lobby from the support of honest voters.

On the same ground we oppose the election of Col. Walbridge, as a candidate whose record showed that he acquiesced in and aided the purposes of corrupt combines, appointed him to office and violated the charter and the criminal law by selling goods to the city while holding office. The statute of limitations is the only bar to the prosecution of these two candidates. It should be a bar to their election to public office.

The charm of portrait painting, when done by a master's hand, is strikingly seen in the portrait of a St. Louis lady on the first color page of the coming Sunday Post-Dispatch. And the wonder is that the painter of this picture is a mere child. There is plenty of romance at the World's Fair—not only romance, but mystery. If a girl carries her name at the Fair, anybody in the world may see it. Read how a young woman found her long-lost sweetheart in this way. And perhaps you can solve the problem of the mysterious picture shown on another page. The reader interested in matters occult will find food for thought in the story of an astonishing fraud, carried on as a business. A grave and reverend gentleman, who has recently published a book on psychic subjects, unearthed this "fact." St. Louis property owners may learn from this Sunday Magazine how it may be possible for them to save gas and coal bills by utilizing a natural resource that appears to be abundant in our soil. The interest of the religious reader will be stimulated by the page describing a World's Fair exhibit of an extremely ancient biblical document. Lovers of beauty will find the pages devoted to lovely women in St. Louis, at the World's Fair and on the stage, satisfying. And the woman who wishes to keep in touch with the fashions will find the latest styles portrayed on the Home Page. New and Strange Things In and About St. Louis is full of good things this week. The Magazine has many other matters of interest, which help to make it unique and up-to-date.

GENEFCUS RELIEF WORK.

The generous co-operation and good will of the local theater managers, the visiting actors, the other newspapers and the public made the benefit in Music Hall, arranged by the Post-Dispatch, a great success. The receipts in hand, all the tickets issued not being accounted for at this writing, exceed $2200. Considering the shortness of the time in which to perfect our arrangements the attendance was remarkable and the program was exceptionally good. The entertainment was thoroughly enjoyed by the immense audience.

The receipts of the benefit, added to the liberal responses of individual citizens and corporations, have brought the relief fund to good proportions. Substantial aid to the surviving families of the dead officers is assured, but more would be a welcome addition to their slender means. Those who have not contributed to the fund and who feel disposed to honor heroic public service by helping the living should send their contributions at once.

All the money received by the Post-Dispatch will be publicly acknowledged and will be audited and equitably distributed among the beneficiaries by a responsible committee. In this, as in many similar appeals, St. Louisans have proved that they have no lack of benevolent public spirit and of generous appreciation of public service. It is to the credit of the community that its members never fail to honor its deserving dead or give help to the needy living.

Cortelyou's nickname of "Can't-tell-you" is said to be sticking. It is not a publicity administration.

THE PROFIT OF WRONGDOING.

Cornelius Van Cott, postmaster of New York City, died suddenly last Tuesday of acute nervous indigestion.

It is said that his death was hastened, if not caused, by worry over the arrest of his son, who is charged with violation of the election law.

Young Van Cott's guilt or innocence is not here in question. But his father's unhappy taking off suggests the reflection that men who break the law and make themselves criminally liable must suffer a heavy strain. And if this is shared by the families of the offenders the consequences are sure to be disastrous.

We have examples in St. Louis. Who can tell how many hours, days and months of anxiety, worry and fear the booters underwent, even before they were found out? When the exposure came who can conceive the sorrow of their families? And fancy the pins and needles in the bed of the man who yet unnamed, feared the probe would reach him.

Does it pay? Does the profit of crime—conventional or unconventional—pay for the misery of fear suffered by the offender and his family? Mr. Van Cott's case goes to show that there are some nature unequal to the load of threatened disaster.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

WORLD'S FAIR SUGGESTION.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
Why not keep the World's Fair buildings open in the evening from now until the Fair closes? To keep them closed in the evening is doing a great injustice to the people, especially St. Louis people, many of whom bought season tickets and could not go but a few times in the day.
L. S.

ORGAN IN FESTIVAL HALL.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
You are ever on the quiver for the real good of our future great city. Begin a plan to retain to St. Louis the great organ in Festival Hall. Without musical education, I enjoy the recitals there as much as any of the great attractions of this greatest World's Fair.
C. J. J.

FOREST PARK SUGGESTION.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
In restoring Forest Park after the World's Fair, why not put iron markers to preserve the location of some of the large buildings. For example, have one with the inscription, "Northeast entrance to the Varied Industries building, 1904." Also have a permanent, artistic band stand on Festival Hall site; a driveway the same width and length where "The Pike" now is; a monument on the site of Louisiana monument, with the total number of persons who attended the World's Fair, and other statistics inscribed upon it.
E. C.

FREE BOOK QUESTION.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
In regard to your article about free books in the public schools, allow a common German workman, who gets only $12 a week, to give his opinion. I send my four children to a private school and pay for it, because they would not learn my children the German language in the public schools. When my children are 14 or 15 years old they can find places through the Post-Dispatch, and I find always advertisements for a "man preferred." When the World's Fair starts, and the landlord raised the rent from $2 to $12 a week, if I pay more taxes you have to pay for it. My wages are not raised this year and are still the same. So I have to live economically. Let the public schools give instructions in the German, or if this is against the law, then give only to the poor children free books, as they do in the German schools, and let those who can pay for them. This would be the opinion of many German workmen. A WORKINGMAN.

FAIR BUILDINGS AND FOREST PARK.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
The Globe-Democrat of Sunday says: "Fine Art building may be torn down." Now, the ridiculous reason given for this demolition is that an agreement to tear down and remove the buildings generally was a part of the contract between the city and the Exposition company when the park was turned over to the latter.

This writer must have been jesting, for the city legislature can as easily rescind this part of the contract as it could make it originally, provided it is desirable to do so, which remains to be determined. As to allowing anything for it in payment of the pitiful $100,000 bond given for restoration, that is not to be thought of.

It seems to me, any effort to sell this building to the city at any price is not right, and more especially if it is proposed to do so in liquidation of the pitiful sum of $100,000—the only security the city has for the restoration of the park. This restoration has been estimated by the city engineer at $1,000,000 in the country to cost $750,000—to make it satisfactory with the total number of persons who attended the World's Fair, and to buy the Art Building.

COLORS OF CATS.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
"C. O. V. G.—We do not know where you could find a three-colored tomcat. Some reader may be able to say." In asking where a three-colored tomcat may be found, C. O. V. G. may be chuckling over the thought that he will send the Answer on a very long trip. However this may be, the question calls attention to one of the curious phenomena of animal life. A good many years ago an offer of $10 was made for a male cat with three distinct colors, but I have never heard that the cat was found. A variety of cat with which we are familiar is the one usually known as the tortoiseshell. These cats seem to be of no particular breed, but come along at intervals with the yellow, black, gray and various other colors. They are found in all climates, almost without exception are good mousers and great fighters. In the country seeming to delight in bringing in ground squirrels, lizards, etc., thus placing themselves in a ban in a good many households. But the singular part of it all is that they are all females. More than once I have been told where one could be found, but I have never found one. In Great Britain there is no such thing as running trains in both directions at the same time on a single track. Let us compel the railroad companies to double their tracks, using one line for travel in each direction, and the proper use of the block system, and accidents will be few. I have seen an engine run on a double-track road, but I have never seen a single-track road, and it seems to me outrageous that nearly all of our great trunk lines in and out of St. Louis are worked on the single-track plan. The sidings are so numerous that a little more expenditure would convert them into a complete track, and so do away with these frightful catastrophes.

The suggestion of your correspondent, "Lester," to amend the law so that damages are a good one. Take the case of a man earning $5000 per annum. Is his life worth only one year's purchase? The case is worse when a man earning $10,000 a year is killed, and his family reduced to poverty. In Great Britain, with double tracks, and with compensation railroad corporations were could never kill at the rate of $5000 per man. CHARLES J. S. DROGGS, M. D.

AN SIN'S LATEST TRICK.

New ways that are dark and tricks that are vain for evading the Chinese exclusion law are brought to light every year. A Chinese woman who was arrested for being illegally in this country not long ago thought of the simple plan of marrying a Chinaman who was entitled to remain here, assuming his status and living happily ever after. A United States commissioner on the Pacific coast decided in her favor, while the immigration bureau carried out the ruling to a higher court. Frank P. Sargent, the commissioner-general, has now issued an instruction, by which he believes that the decision in the Doe Gum Tin case, if it is sustained, will make a hole which it will be almost impossible to stop up.

POST-DISPATCH POLITICAL X-RAY PORTRAITS.

NO. 5—ERNEST WOOD.

NEW YORK WORLD EDITORIALS TODAY

A POET FANCY FREE.

Mr. Hay's prose poem delivered at Carnegie Hall was a charming work of the imagination. Perhaps it is not quite fair to judge by commonplace standards of fact, but if the voter is expected to take it seriously into consideration as a political guide these are the standards he must apply.

Mr. Hay asserts that in the event of a Republican victory "We shall continue to treat our sister republics of this hemisphere as friend and equals, not coveting their goods or their soil—desiring only their trade and their friendship." But the President said in his Cuban letter that "our sister republics" would be free from our interference only so long as they should "govern themselves well and be prosperous and orderly."

None of them is safe unless it shows Mr. Roosevelt that it "knows how to act with decency in industrial and political matters," that it "keeps order and pays its obligations," and that it is free from "brutal wrongdoing or an impotence which results in a general loosening of the ties of civilized society." Is this treating the sister republics as "friend and equals"? President Roosevelt urged us to "grasp the points of vantage" about the Panama canal. Was this assuring the sister republics that we were "not coveting their goods or their soil?"

Mr. Hay thinks it a "blunder well-nigh incredible" for Judge Parker to say that we should treat the Philippines as we did Cuba, because "there is no analogy between the two cases. We have never owned Cuba, we have never claimed to own it. The Philippines are ours by every sanction known to public law; by fortune of war, by treaty, by purchase, by occupation, by undisputed and undisputed possession."

In every point of difference the case of keeping Cuba was stronger than that for keeping the Philippines. We freed Cuba from Spain, the Philippines practically freed themselves. The Cuban insurgents did not conquer and hold a square mile of Cuban soil; the Filipino insurgents conquered and held pretty much their whole country outside of Manila. Cuba was almost within sight of our shores, and for three-quarters of a century had been regarded by American statesmen as part of our political system; the Philippines were on the other side of the world. Cuba had no organized native government; the Philippine republic was completely established, with President, Congress, capital, provincial and local administration, army and financial system. We got Cuba "by fortune of war, by occupation, by undisputed and undisputed possession"—not a possession that had to be maintained by a fleet and 70,000 fighting soldiers, as in the Philippines—and we could have had it "by treaty and by purchase" if we had so chosen. In fact, Spain wished to cede it to us, instead of leaving its sovereignty in suspension, as we insisted it should do.

Mr. Hay repeats the shabby old fiction that the Philippines have cost us "not to exceed $180,000,000." If he had been reading the speeches of his old colleague, Mr. Taft, and his late colleague, Mr. Root, he would have learned that these figures date from two years and a half ago, and that even then they related only to the cost of the army in the island, and with the narrowest technical limitations at that.

The only reasonable way to estimate the cost of the Philippines is to compare our expenditures in all directions with the amounts we should have spent if we had not gone into that adventure. On that basis Judge Parker's estimate of $650,000,000 in all, with a continuing annual expense of $50,000,000, is extremely—even unduly—moderate.

FCW MUCH?

Neither is it true that the Standard Oil Company, Mr. John D. Rockefeller or any other officer of the Standard Oil Company has taken part in securing the nomination of any of the candidates for president, as is so positively stated.—From the Standard Oil Company's statement.

But how about taking part in securing the election of any candidate? In its third open letter to the President, The World asked this question: "How much has the Oil Trust contributed to Mr. Cortelyou?"

Mr. Cortelyou refused to answer. Will the company answer? Will Mr. Rockefeller answer? The great oil king is showing himself very sensitive to public opinion, and the public would like to know how much he has given to the Republican campaign fund?

Speak up, Mr. Rockefeller. Speak up, Mr. Dodd. Re-sensitize again. This is the only important accusation. How much has John D. Rockefeller given to George B. Cortelyou or the Republican national committee?

HOW TO TEST A HUSBAND.

By Nikola Greeley-Smith, Granddaughter of Horace Greeley.

It is a common saying among men and women who pride themselves on their knowledge of the world that no woman knows a man's true nature until she is married to him. It remained for a young woman of Chicago to disprove the statement by inventing a pre-marital test for husbands.

Having some doubts as to the wearing qualities of her test, she adopted the ingenious plan of having other men present when he called to test his patience, cooking him a bad dinner to test his self-control and proving his constancy by going about with another man. All three tests failed, she broke the engagement, and the discarded lover is now suing for the return of his betrothal ring and other presents which he had lavished upon her.

Wise as her generation is this young woman, and her example is one which will be followed by the doubting sisterhood wherever her story penetrates. The most remarkable feature of the whole case, however, is that such unusual caution should have been developed by a girl of Chicago, who would be expected to have a mean dinner or bore with smiling unconcern the most exhaustive test to the husband's fidelity and silence. And still others, when they met Mary Jane walking with "another," might demonstrate the truth of that beautiful but impractical Shakespearean sentiment that "love is not love which alters when the alteration finds, or seeks with the remover to remove."

But no man can traverse all these ordeals successfully. If he could, he might experience a good deal of difficulty in finding a wife, for women don't care any more for the "fidelity faultless" than men do. And if he could, he would demonstrate his utter lack of the most essential and the rarest quality in a husband—that is, truthfulness. For the man who would pretend to enjoy the presence of other men during a visit to his fiancée would be untruthful. So would be any man who, when asked for a dinner or bore with smiling unconcern the

GEMS FROM CLEVELAND'S SPEECH

WHAT DEMOCRACY STANDS FOR.

But the principles and best traits of the Democratic party reach their highest importance and value at such a time as this, when our people are tempted by stirring delusions, and when they are offered the dogmas of the world that will but throw themselves down and worship the God of Mammon.

ONE-SIDED PROSPERITY.

They know that their country's prosperity, like the ruins of heaven which freethers and beauty the ornamental laws and at the same time make productive the farms and garden, should be distributed among all the people in every station of life; and they will challenge the claim of a party which boasts of a prosperity which gives to its pampered favorites added opportunities to increase their riches, while the poor and those who toil wait like Lazarus to be fed from the crumbs which fall from the rich man's table.

THE PHILIPPINE DISGRACE.

The insurrection suppressed was no more than the crushing out of resistance to the army of the United States while engaged in the subjugation of a people thousands of miles from our shores, whom no incident of a war undertaken by us in aid of those struggling for liberty and independence in another quarter, had put within our power; and the people will ask under what sanction was the subjugation entered upon by a nation pledged to the doctrine that all just powers of government are derived from the consent of the governed; and they will deny that imperialism and our forcible rule of foreign people have any place among the purposes of our national life.

THE SIAM ANTI-TRUST FIGHT.

A party may indulge in self-congratulation when it has effectively defeated the enemy. It is generally lost enough of this capacity of trust and combinations which thrive as private enterprise is strangled, and which grow fat as, by their control of the cost of living, they cause the homes of our land to grow lean, but the people will not be lulled by the deceptive pride which closes their eyes to the fact that the party which has defeated the enemy has also defeated the people. The party which has defeated the enemy has also defeated the people. The party which has defeated the enemy has also defeated the people. The party which has defeated the enemy has also defeated the people.

THE TARIFF PRETENSES.

They (the people) will see the sheer wrongfulness of this condition so clearly and they will so firmly believe in this way they are made to bear tariff burdens the order that they may be discriminated against in favor of foreign consumers, that they will not be satisfied with the assurance that the tariff has nothing to do with trusts. They will consign such an explanation to the limbo of negotiation and take its place with the outworn deception that the foreign clause merely our tariff taxes, and with two other badly weak pretenses—one that the tariff should be reformed only by its friends, and the other that the party which has defeated the enemy has also defeated the people.

THE PANAMA CRIME.

Not even the great world of this century accomplished will close the eyes of thoughtful Americans to the fact that in reaching the results we have exhibited such international ruthlessness and such selfish international immorality as to have lustily debilitated our own resources for good faith, and established a precedent which, in time to come, may be invoked to justify the most startling and reprehensible abandonment of the high ideals which have made us an example of the best civilization.

NATIONAL IMMORALITY AND CORRUPTION.

The true greatness and glory of our nation cannot safely rest upon wealth which finds its way to the few at the expense of the many, nor upon material success as our resources for good faith, and established a precedent which, in time to come, may be invoked to justify the most startling and reprehensible abandonment of the high ideals which have made us an example of the best civilization.

HIGH NOON AT SEA.

The most momentous improvement in navigation since the invention of the chronometer, over a hundred and forty years ago, has just been foretold in a modest paragraph in the report of the chief of the bureau equipment of the United States Navy.

"It is believed," says Chief Manney, "that the development of wireless telegraphy will enable these (time) signals be distributed over water as well as over land, and that before long every ship at sea, in addition to every land station, will receive daily noon signals from the standard observatory clock."

What does that mean? Nothing less than the elimination of the element of uncertainty from the problem of finding the position of a ship at sea. Hitherto the one weak point in navigation has been the difficulty of carrying standard time on a voyage. Observations for local time as well as for latitude have been exact, but the comparison of local with standard time for obtaining the longitude has involved a certain amount of guesswork. The best chronometer is not quite infallible, and some allowance, which may not be precisely right, has always to be made for error. But with time-signals received from a national observatory every day at noon the mariner will know his way over any part of the wide ocean as accurately as if he were threading a buoyed channel. The chronometer will join the cross-staff and the astrolabe on the junk-heap of discarded makeshifts.

And of course a ship that can communicate with the shore for one purpose is equally in touch with the world for any other communication it needs to make.

Street Car Sonnets.

I.
What boots it that we rave about the way
We have to stand and dangle from a strap,
Jerking one arm out by the roots, mayhap,
Or not.
As we are carried homeward when the day
Is near its ending, falling like a jay
Kerflop into the nearest woman's lap—
She says, no doubt, like giving us a slap.
And being forced for pardon then to pray?
Will blasphemy and curses change our lot?
Will furious frowns relieve our dark despair?
Will fate seize those ill-mannered fiends,
Or not.
Who tread upon our feet in silence there?
Oh, that conductor! We upon the spot
Could slay him as he calls out sharply,
"Fare!"

II.

Why is it men will basely keep their seats
And boldly ride for forty-seven blocks
When some old woman with a load of socks
And shirts and such (by washing them she cuts)
Is standing up, her poor old tired feet
All given out, and rise in eager flocks
On the appearance of Miss Fluffy Locks,
Whose dad has gold enough to pave the streets?
Why is it they pretend upon a page
To glue their eyes with interest intense,
And pay no heed to sere and yellow age,
Which, lacking beauty, looks like thirty cents?
Alas, I do not know! I will engage
A lawyer to explain this, some days hence.

Osculation Extraordinary.

What has come over our ancient and honorable friend, Joaquin Miller, the bard of the Sierras, the picturesque old poet of the mountains? Only a month or two ago, just at a time when almost everybody thought that he had sunk into the quietness and obsolescence of extreme age, he burst forth into a flood of fervid song that startled the whole country.
Far and wide his classic verses on the subject of wooing, wherein he admonished the lover to kiss the object of his affection to death and then kiss her back to life again, were copied in the newspapers.
People read them and sat up and opened their eyes. White-whiskered old Joaquin had hit them in the eye; and now, almost before they have had time to recover from the first shock, here the old poet comes loping along with another choice bit of verbiage, just published by the Smart Set. He calls it "The Bravest Lover." Just listen:

How bravest that brave lover is
Who loves all things beneath the sun,
Tues such all women in just one,
And finds all fortunes in almost all;
How wisely born, how more than wise,
How wisely learned must be that soul
Who loves all earth, all paradise,
All peoples, places, pole to pole,
Yet in one kiss includes the whole!

It was Caligula, the old Roman tyrant, who once declared he wished all mankind had but one neck, that he might sever it with one stroke of his sword; and it was Byron who said that he could "improve the tyrant's wish" by wishing

That womankind had but one rosy mouth,
To kiss them all at once, from north to south.

But not even so extravagant a wish as that can satisfy the immortal cravings of this old man of the mountains. Joaquin Miller, it seems, even in his old age, is determined to beat out Blas Carman for the title of the Premier Kissing Bug of the Century.

AMERICAN ENTERPRISES IN CUBA

Walter A. Evans in the Pilgrim for November.

Nowhere is American daring and grit seen more forcibly in Cuba than in the numerous American colonies. Here truth compels the admission that "Americanos malos," as the Cubans call them (bad Americans), as narrow in mind as they are unfeeling in heart, have done some dirty work. They have in some instances at least, bought up large tracts of country that were poor or worthless as it lay, and by the Titanic, have sold it to guileless

Americans for ten times its real worth. And this was not their worst sin, as it cost the purchasers such hardship and suffering in a foreign land, the peculiarities of which they did not understand. The average Cuban, except the upper classes, is simply a barbarian. All history shows that in single-hand competition with a barbarian, a man of civilized wants and habits will perish. Vast harm has come to Cuba, and also to American enterprise in Cuba, by these land swindlers who have taken advantage of the lack of an extradition treaty between the two republics to escape the punishment they richly deserve. For example, in one day, there were dumped into a tropic forest, too thick to see 20 rods ahead, 20 people at what is now La Gloria, in Puerto Principe province—20 men, women and children spilled out into a forest full of swarms of mosquitoes, amid giant trees and clinging vines, without a shelter from the tropic rains, having been lured there by circulars making glittering promises of all manner of opportunities to get rich quick—and no means of subsistence whatever about them. Boston City, not far from there, is another "city" widely advertised and much exploited as a most prosperous colony with "already over 6000 purchasers," etc., etc. When the writer rode over it last January on horseback, what did he find? A little clearing in a tropic forest, many miles from the coast, over 30 miles from any

"city." "Only this and nothing more!" Not a stick nor a stone to mark a sign of human habitation. Similar swindles were "worked" by "Americanos malos" in Cuba for three years after reconstruction began. But, now comes the pleasant part of it. The plucky Americans with their usual gumption, though at first utterly disheartened, soon made a virtue of necessity, took heart and are now succeeding. That same La Gloria is now a thriving town of 400 to 500 people. It has good American houses, two good churches with American pastors, a city government, town library (most of the colonists are from New England book-loving communities), though four miles from the coast and 40 miles from a city, surrounded with giant trees of cedar and mahogany!

PARKER'S COMING EXCITES CONNECTICUT

Democrats Are Greatly Encouraged and Expect His Meeting to Help Present Boom.

POLL SHOWS STEADY GAIN

Taggart Says Bryan Has Helped Indiana and the State Is Undoubtedly Safe.

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 28.—The announcement that Judge Parker is to speak in this state caused a big boom in politics and the Democratic managers are highly elated. The local manager is trying to get the largest hall in town, and he offered Polk's Theater $1000 for the use of the house for the evening.

The Post's postal vote presented this evening shows Democratic gain in the Sixth ward. The following official statement was made at the headquarters of the Democratic state committee today:

"Daily reports from all over the state of Connecticut indicate the remarkable strength of Judge Parker in sections which were supposed to be strongly Republican and the reports which the Republicans have been sending broadcast that they would carry the state by a big majority are absurd, as existing conditions do not warrant any such statements.

Conservative Republicans are openly advocating the election of Judge Parker, and the large element which has become disaffected with the warlike tendencies of President Roosevelt are flocking into the Democratic ranks in a manner that is causing much apprehension to the Republican managers.

The extraordinary strength of the Democratic state ticket is extremely gratifying and the fact that the party is solidly united gives every reason to believe that the state will roll up a good Democratic majority."

DEMOCRATS BETTING 2 TO 1 ON MARYLAND RESULTS

TIMORE, Oct. 28.—So confident are Democrats in Maryland of carrying the state that they are now betting on major odds of 2 to 1 and no takers on the odds. Interest is centered in the congressional contests in the First, Third and Fifth districts, all of which are now represented by Republicans, and at least two of which will this time go Democratic.

Mr. Watcher's friends in the city offered to bet $1000 last night that he would be elected. A Democrat who went to the Union League to cover the money was told that those who made the offer wanted to bet Watcher would be in the next Congress. They banked on his successful competitor being unseated.

Young Gorman, who is directing the fight against Mudd in the Fifth, said today he was confident the black belt would be redeemed by the Democrats. Mudd's people acknowledge he is in a bad way.

Democrats carry this district they will be repaid by five Democrats. The seat representation of the four Republicans and two Democrats. The chair of the Republican committee claims the four districts carried two years by reduced majorities. Their meetings, not so well attended. Last night, Charles J. Bonaparte was booked to speak at Hartford County, and the meeting was "cried." When he ascended the stage he faced five whites and four left in disgust.

IS CONFIDENT DON'T GIVE FIGURES

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 28.—National Comptroller returned today from Bryan to Chicago. He said he would have traveled with him if he had not seen I am needed in the engine room.

"I am not much given to making predictions, but you'll find that I'm not wrong when I say Indiana is good Democratic. Give me $1000 and I'll give you anything. I refuse to give figures."

WOOD DOCK CHARGE RESENTED

National Millers' Federation Declares Extra Fee Discriminates Against American Exporters.

The second day's session of the board of directors of the National Federation of Millers was held in the rooms of the Louisville Manufacturers' Association in the Merchants' Exchange. Nearly 80 officers and other representatives of trade are attending the meeting.

London landing charge is the principal matter being discussed at the meeting. The association is opposed to a concession of the charge of 42 cents a ton on all American freight entering the London docks. It is declared by members of the federation that this charge is a discrimination against American goods, as is not made for the entrance of goods from any other country. At the last session a bill was introduced to compel the American railroads to issue a bill of lading without this London dock charge, it was defeated.

Before adjournment, the federation will make a number of resolutions on matters of interest to the trade.

Buttermakers Favor Special Instruction in Rural Schools.

A National Creamery Butter Makers' association has adjourned after a several session in Agricultural Hall at the Fair. The time and place of the annual meeting will be selected by executive committee.

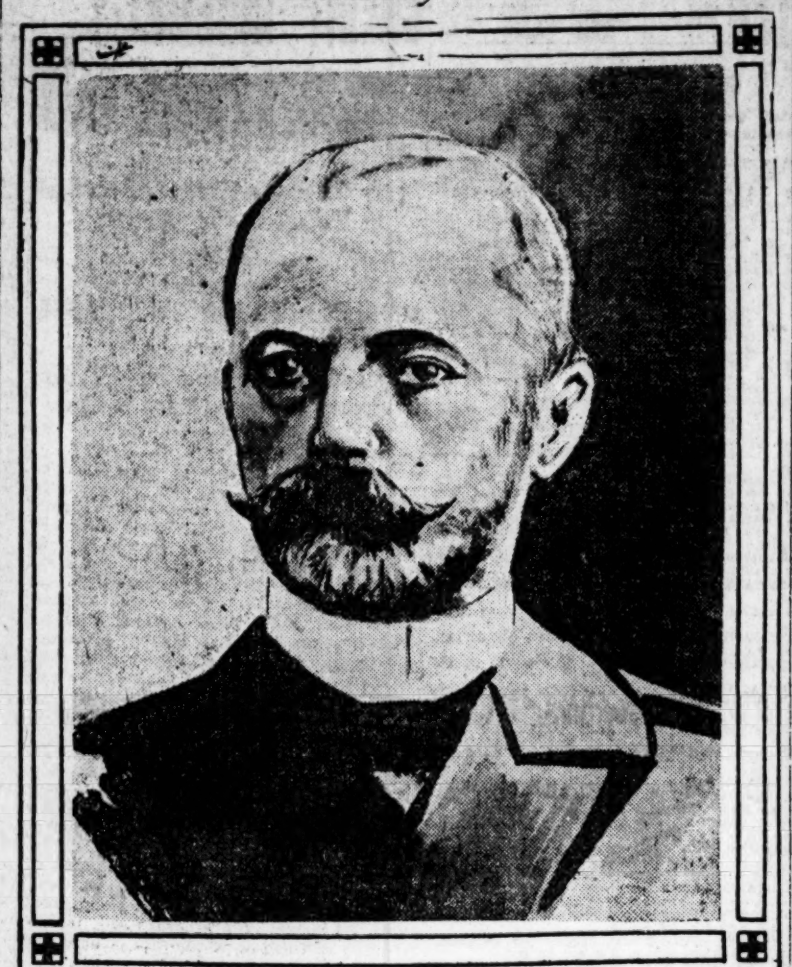

The association passed resolutions endorsing the action of the Dairy Union, a kindergarten, in its endeavors to try to enforce the law regarding the sale of margarine. The teaching of the value of dairymen and elementary agriculture in the rural schools was advocated in resolutions passed by the association.

PORT ARTHUR FORTS GAINED BY JAPANESE

Desperate Attack on Russian Positions Successful, Enabling the Besiegers to Advance Their Armies Toward the Goal.

TOKIO, Oct. 28, 4:30 p. m.—It is reported that the Japanese opened a desperate attack on the eastern forts of the Keekwan group, north of Port Arthur, during the morning of Oct. 25, and silenced the Russian batteries. A shell exploded the Russian magazines.

Simultaneously the Japanese attacked the forts on Rihlung mountain and Sungnobo mountain, silenced the Russian batteries and stormed and occupied the forts in front of these mountains.

On the night of Oct. 26 there was a conflagration in old Port Arthur and on Oct. 27 a shell hit the Russian battleship Sevastopol and two Russian steamers were sunk.

Official confirmation of the above is lacking but the reports are believed to be true.

STOESSER GRIMLY
DEFENDING LAST
PORT ARTHUR FORT.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 28.—A private letter from Port Arthur, dated Oct. 21, received here today, says:

"Gen. Stoessel wired the Russian Emperor and court recently: 'I now bid you all good-by forever. Port Arthur is my grave.'"

"Gen. Stoessel has instilled the garrison of the beleaguered fortress with the spirit that to court a glorious death is preferable to capitulation.

"The Japanese shells are inflicting great damage to the Russian fleet in the harbor and to the fortifications.

"The arsenal with its contents of ammunition and small arms has been destroyed and preparations are being made for the last deadly struggle at close quarters.

"The water supply having been cut off, wells are being sunk.

"Provisions are scarce and only tinned meats being left. The soldiers hold gala feasts on horses killed by the shells.

"Gen. Simonoff, it is said, would surrender, but is overruled by Gen. Stoessel.

"Certain troops included in the garrison have to be closely watched at present for fear of desertion or treachery.

"The field and naval hospitals are crowded and hygienic conditions are becoming desperate. The bombardment at times is so incessant that it is impossible to bury the dead to any depth.

"Over one-half of the original garrison is dead, wounded or sick.

"When the fleet attempted to break through the blockade some time ago, the garrison was to have made a desperate sortie and inflict as much damage as possible and if necessary capitulate. The failure of the fleet to escape frustrated this plan.

"The besiegers are pressing closer daily and it is hard to say how long we can hold out. When the end comes there will be a desperate fight and surprise. Thousands of the enemy will perish as everything is mined."

This letter was entrusted to a native postman who ran the blockade and mailed it at Chefoo.

The resident is a prominent continental business man of this city with a branch house at Port Arthur.

Chinese Tell of Siege Conditions.
CHEFOO, Oct. 28, 5 p. m.—Japanese at Dainy report the continued arrival of huge siege guns.

A junk from Port Arthur with eleven Chinese who left there on Oct. 19, on account of the coasts of food, arrived here today. They say that several of the Russian warships have been hit by dropping shells, but none have been sunk. They estimate the able-bodied soldiers there now at 10,000, saying that a smaller force would be insufficient to garrison the various positions.

Scarcely a night passes without small engagements over minor positions, and artillery fire is exchanged daily. Opium is scarce. The Chinese, economically inclined, eat it as smoking requires much larger quantities.

Last winter's uniforms are being worn by the soldiers, who are now mostly supplied with Chinese shoes.

HILL NEAR FUSAN
WON BY HAND-TO-HAND FIGHT.

GEN. KUROKI'S HEADQUARTERS IN THE FIELD, via Fusan, Oct. 28.—The Japanese gave a stirring exhibition of sharp and determined fighting yesterday. They drove the Russians from a high hill 10 miles east of the railroad in Gen. Kuroki's front, which is important strategically as a post of observation and was the only point south of the Shikhe river which the Russians held. About a regiment of Russians were entrenched there with five machine guns.

The Japanese rushed the trenches, shot many Russians as they were running down the hillside and captured two machine guns.

The Japanese had 20 men killed and 80 wounded. The Russians left 30 dead on the field. The Russians retired across the river.

When the Japanese flag was raised over a tower surmounting the hill the Russian batteries showered shrapnel on it for an hour, but without result.
